Treasury Savings Certificates

Description:

These certificates evolved from War Savings Certificates which, beginning in 1919, were offered in the Denominations: of $100 and $1,000. In 1920 the Treasury changed the designation of War-Savings Certificates to Treasury Savings Certificates, but continued to use both names in its annual reports. In December 1921 War-Savings Certificates/Treasury Savings Certificates were altered to fit into the newly formed United States Government Savings System and the standard name for the issue became Treasury Savings Certificates. Treasury Savings Certificates gained a $25 denomination and a new pricing structure. Until December 1921, issues were sold at varying discount rates with a fixed maturity date. After December 1921, issues were sold at fixed discount rates with a maturity date of 5 years from date issued. The discount price was raised in October 1922 to reflect changes in interest rates.

United Nations Children's Fund Series

Description:

These securities were issued as the United States' contribution to the United Nations Children's Fund which was established on December 11, 1946 as the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF). Its immediate mission was to help children in post-World War II Europe. In 1953, UNICEF became a permanent part of the United Nations and its name was shortened to the United Nations Children's Fund. The organization's focus then became the education, feeding, and protection of children in developing countries.

United States Information Agency: Note of Administrator (E.C.A.) @ 1.875%

Description:

Issued to finance the Informational Media Guaranty Fund. Created by the Economic Cooperation Act of 1948, this fund was used to finance the Informational Media Guaranty Program. The purpose of this program was to insure that books, films, and other media with a pro-United States message were successfully exported from the United States. The Informational Media Guaranty Program guaranteed that the media companies could retrieve the full value of their earnings overseas by paying the exporters in dollars for the earned income. This subsidy was paid out of the Informational Media Guaranty Fund. Money for the fund was, in part, raised by the sale of securities to the Treasury. The director of the United States Information Agency, who oversaw the program, was authorized to issue securities as needed.

United States Savings Bonds, Series E

Description:

First issued in fiscal year 1946 after end of War Savings Series on September 5, 1945 with a maturity of 10 years and an effective interest rate, if held to maturity, of 2.9%. On July 2, 1945, the $200 denomination was added. A special $200 denomination honoring Franklin Roosevelt was sold during the Victory Loan drive (October 29, 1945 to January 3, 1946). On May 1, 1952, the effective yield of the bond at maturity was raised from 2.9% to 3.00% and the maturity was reduced to 9 years, 8 months. Also, in 1952, the $10,000 denomination was added. In February 1954, $25 Series E bonds began to be printed by the offset process. On February 1, 1957, the interest on Series E bonds was raised to 3.25% and the maturity was reduced to 8 years 11 months. The $100,000 denomination was added and available only to trustees of employee's savings plans. Beginning in October 1957, the bonds were issued as computer punch cards and not printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The yield was again increased to 3.75% on September 22, 1959, retroactive to June 1, 1959. In 1965, the yield was raised to 4.15%, effective December 1965. Series E bonds were withdrawn for sale on December 31, 1979 but were issued under payroll savings plans until June 30, 1980.

United States Savings Notes

Description:

United States Savings Notes were first issued on May 1, 1967. Also known as a "Freedom Share," the United States Savings Note was meant to "encourage additional savings and reduce the amount of marketable debt financing required" (Report of the Secretary of the Treasury, 1967: 14). It was redeemable after one year, paid 4.74% interest, and matured in 4.5 years. United States Savings Notes could only be purchased by individuals with the purchase of Series E United States Savings Bonds. Denominations offered were $25, $50, $75, and $100 and sold at a discount.

United States Savings Stamps

Description:

In 1935, with the sale of United States Savings Bonds, Postal Savings Stamps were redesignated United States Savings Stamps but still considered an obligation of the Postal Service. Then in 1942, Post Office United States Savings Stamps became an obligation of the Treasury and the official designation given to Defense Savings Stamps and War Savings Stamps through the Public Debt Act of March 28, 1942. United States Savings Stamps were issued after World War II for the School Savings Program and through Post Offices. They were discontinued on June 30, 1970.

United States Treasury Certificate, First Series

Description:

The only issue of this certificate of indebtedness occurred in March 1932 as part of President Hoover's "put idle money to work" campaign. These were highly liquid, one-year certificates redeemable on 60 days notice. The certificates were issued as coupon, bearer bonds in denominations of $50, $100, and $500 and were payable in gold. The government's goal in issuing these certificates was to get hoarded money back into the financial system by providing a safe place to invest after the bank failures of the Great Depression.

Veterans' Administration: Agreement @ 4.25%

Description:

An "agreement to sell" a mortgage derived from the Veterans' Direct Loan Program begun by the Housing Act of 1950. The program provided direct loans to veterans living in areas where a mortgage that could simply be guaranteed by the Veterans' Administration could not be obtained because of a lack of private mortgage money. After making a direct loan or mortgage, the Administrator of the Veterans' Administration was authorized to sell the mortgage on the open market.

War-Savings Certificates

Description:

War-Savings Certificates were first issued in 1918 by the Government Printing Office as blank forms onto which War-Savings Certificate Stamps were affixed. Then in 1919 War-Savings Certificates bearing monetary values of $100 and $1,000 were issued by the Treasury. These financial instruments served as larger Denominations: of the War-Savings Certificate Stamps and rendered unnecessary the collecting and pasting of $5 stamps. In 1920 (July 1, 1919) the Treasury changed the designation of War-Savings Certificates to Treasury Savings Certificates, but continued to use both names in its annual reports. In December 1921 War-Savings Certificates/Treasury Savings Certificates were altered to fit into the newly formed United States Government Savings System. For this new financial instrument see the entry under Treasury Savings Certificates.

War-Savings Stamps, draft letter of instruction to postmasters in "War-Savings Certificate Stamps."

War-Savings Certificate Stamps

Description:

This stamp was issued during and for a short time after World War I (1918 to 1921). Bought at a discount, it matured in 5 years to a value of $5. The stamps matured on a fixed date and the discount price was pro-rated according to how long before that date the stamp was purchased. When newly issued in January of the year of issue the stamp cost $4.12. Each month thereafter the cost rose one cent until the end of the year after which sales on the issue would close. At that time the stamp would sell for $4.23. The stamps were attached to a War-Savings Certificate provided free by the Treasury. At times the Treasury called these simply War-Savings Certificates or War Savings Securities. The War-Savings Certificate Stamp was discontinued in 1921 and replaced by the Treasury Savings Stamp. Advance sales of War-Savings Certificate Stamps began on December 3, 1917 but the stamps were dated January 2, 1918.
